Gospel - John 11.1 - 45

JESUS CHRIST, NEW LIFE OF THOSE WHO BELIEVE

The sepulcher from which God brings out his people in exile: «Here I open your tombs», with the promise to bring him back to his land, and the tomb from which Jesus calls Lazarus to life, they are images of immersion in water of baptism. By immersing themselves in the water, those who received baptism symbolically descended into the tomb, where they deposited the old man, the one dominated by the "flesh", that is, from sin. «Lazarus, come out!»: the exit of Lazarus from the sepulcher becomes the image of the baptized rising from the water of baptism, risen to a new life. Lazarus is called by name, and you also received a name in baptism, because salvation involves you personally: it is you who today comes out of the tomb, who passes from the slavery of sin to the dignity of a son of God, from the dominion of death to the life that springs from the resurrection of Christ: «I am the resurrection and the life... Whoever lives and believes in me, he will never die." And all of this happens now, in your presence, in the day of your faith: "Do you believe this?... Yes, Lord, I believe."

GESÙ CRISTO, VITA NUOVA DI CHI CREDE

Il sepolcro da cui Dio fa uscire il suo popolo in esilio: «Ecco, io apro i vostri sepolcri», con la promessa di ricondurlo nella sua terra, e la tomba da cui Gesù richiama Lazzaro alla vita, sono immagini dell'immersione nell'acqua del battesimo. Immergendosi nell'acqua, coloro che ricevevano il battesimo scendevano simbolicamente nel sepolcro, dove deponevano l'uomo vecchio, quello dominato dalla "carne", cioè dal peccato. «Lazzaro, vieni fuori!»: l'uscita di Lazzaro dal sepolcro diventa l'immagine del battezzato che risale dall'acqua del battesimo, risorto a una vita nuova. Lazzaro è chiamato per nome, e anche tu nel battesimo hai ricevuto un nome, perché la salvezza ti coinvolge personalmente: sei tu che oggi esci dal sepolcro, che passi dalla schiavitù del peccato alla dignità di figlio di Dio, dal dominio della morte alla vita scaturita dalla risurrezione di Cristo: «Io sono la risurrezione e la vita... Chiunque vive e crede in me non morirà in eterno». E tutto questo avviene ora, nel tuo presente, nell'oggi della tua fede: «Credi questo?... Sì, o Signore, io credo».
