2nd Reading - 1 PETER 2.20b - 25

Gospel - Luke 10.1 - 10

A PERSONAL CALL

What should we do, brothers?" This is how the listeners react to Peter's Easter announcement. In this day, dedicated to prayer for vocations, it is a question that we must ask ourselves. Easter and the new life that springs from it challenge us with their demanding gift: we are called to respond to the Word of God with concrete choices, which allow us to be nourished and enlightened by it. Peter recalls that the fundamental vocation that we all receive is the baptismal one, which however asks us to correspond to the gift received in concrete forms of discipleship, through a continuous conversion to the love of God that precedes us and transforms us. The shepherd - Jesus says in the Gospel speaking of himself - calls his sheep each by name, and leads them out, through different ways, from marriage to priesthood, from religious to lay, but all united by offering us "life in abundance". In fact, beyond individual choices, what is given to all is the quality of a full relationship with the one who, as Peter writes in his first letter, is the shepherd and guardian of our souls and therefore of our joy.

UNA CHIAMATA PERSONALE

Che cosa dobbiamo fare, fratelli?". Così gli ascoltatori reagiscono all'annuncio pasquale di Pietro. In questa giornata, dedicata alla preghiera per le vocazioni, è una domanda che dobbiamo fare nostra. La Pasqua e la vita nuova che ne scaturisce ci interpellano con il loro dono esigente: siamo chiamati a rispondere alla Parola di Dio con scelte concrete, che si lascino da essa nutrire e illuminare. Pietro ricorda che la vocazione fondamentale che tutti riceviamo è quella battesimale, che ci chiede però di corrispondere al dono ricevuto in forme concrete di discepolato, attraverso una continua conversione all'amore di Dio che ci precede e ci trasforma. Il pastore - dice Gesù nel Vangelo parlando di sé - chiama le sue pecore ciascuna per nome, e le conduce fuori, attraverso vie diverse, da quella matrimoniale a quella sacerdotale, da quella religiosa a quella laicale, tutte però accomunate dall'offerirci "vita in abbondanza". Infatti, al di là delle singole scelte, ciò che a tutti viene donato è la qualità di una relazione piena con colui che, come scrive Pietro nella sua prima lettera, è il pastore e il custode delle nostre anime e dunque della nostra gioia.
