2nd Reading - James 3.16 - 4.3

Gospel - Mark 9.30 - 37

THE MOST DIFFICULT LESSON: THE CROSS

Jesus reveals to his disciples that he is not a Messiah like they expected, but he who carries out his saving mission through the cross. The prophet Isaiah speaks of the Suffering Servant of Javhé, prefiguration of Jesus, man of sorrows who, in his passion, places all his trust in the Father and teaches the most difficult lesson to understand for the man always full of self-love: humiliation, suffering and the cross. The cross is his life partner. And for us too there are no preferential or convenient lanes. The road of life is traveled with the cross on our shoulders, ours and, if we are generous, also that of others we take upon ourselves when we realize that they are about to give way underneath its weight. The desire to take the path to success is of personal gratification, avoiding, if possible, difficulties, it makes the cross rough, inelegant and now out of fashion. But standing humbly behind Jesus Christ makes us discover serene certainty to find ourselves on the right path and to be able to reach our destination. The final point is glory, the definitive one, achieved in company of Him who teaches that only by tackling a path fraught with obstacles you reach the summit.

LA LEZIONE PIÙ DIFFICILE: LA CROCE

Gesù svela ai discepoli che egli non è un Messia come loro si aspettano, ma colui che realizza la sua missione salvifica per mezzo della croce. Il profeta Isaia parla del Servo sofferente di Javhé, prefigurazione di Gesù, uomo dei dolori che, nella sua passione, ripone tutta la sua fiducia nel Padre e insegna la lezione più difficile da capire all'uomo sempre pieno di amor proprio: l'umiliazione, la sofferenza e la croce. La croce è la sua compagna di vita. E anche per noi non esistono corsie preferenziali o di comodo. La strada della vita si percorre con la croce sulle spalle, la nostra e, se siamo generosi, anche quella di altri che prendiamo su di noi quando ci accorgiamo che stanno per cedere sotto il suo peso. Il desiderio d'imboccare la strada del successo e della gratificazione personale, evitando, se possibile, le difficoltà, rende ruvida, poco elegante e ormai fuori moda la croce. Ma stare umilmente dietro a Gesù Cristo fa scoprire la serena certezza di trovarci sulla strada giusta e di poter arrivare a destinazione. Il punto finale è la gloria, quella definitiva, raggiunta in compagnia di Colui che insegna che solo affrontando un percorso irto di ostacoli si giunge alla vetta.
