SINCERE PRAYER
REACHES THE HEART OF GOD

Today's liturgy presents us with a parable narrated only by Luke, the evangelist who emphasizes, more than the others, the mercy of God, the infinite love manifested in Jesus' gestures of forgiveness. Neither of the two men praying in the parable is lying. It is true that the Pharisee fulfills all the prescriptions of the Law; however, he seems to thank the Lord only because, in doing so, his heart does not reproach him. The tax collector is also sincere: he acknowledges, without extenuating circumstances, his own sin of deception and "abuse of office," as we would say today. The prayer of the two is, however, profoundly different in quality: the first is simply a monologue with himself, extolling his abilities and emphasizing his good will; The second admits to God that he is wrong and, asking for forgiveness, enters into a relationship that vindicates him, putting his life back on the right track, according to God's will. These are two opposite ways of addressing God: one is a solitary conference, the second is a true prayer! Let us choose the second way and we will be able to savor the grace of God that penetrates the depths of our lives.

LA PREGHIERA SINCERA
RAGGIUNGE IL CUORE DI DIO

La liturgia oggi ci presenta una parabola narrata solo da Luca, l'evangelista che sottolinea, più degli altri, la misericordia di Dio, amore infinito che si manifesta nei gesti di perdono di Gesù. Né l'uno né l'altro degli oranti della parabola mente. È vero che il fariseo adempie tutte le prescrizioni della Legge; tuttavia sembra ringraziare il Signore solo perché, così facendo, il suo cuore non gli rimprovera nulla. Anche il pubblicano è sincero: riconosce, senza attenuanti, il proprio peccato di imbroglio e di "abuso d'ufficio", come diremmo noi oggi. La preghiera dei due è, tuttavia, profondamente diversa in qualità: il primo non fa altro che un monologo con sé stesso, esaltando le sue capacità e mettendo in risalto la sua buona volontà; il secondo ammette di fronte a Dio che sta sbagliando e, chiedendo perdono, entra in una relazione che lo giustifica, rimettendo la sua vita nella direzione giusta, secondo la volontà di Dio. Sono due modalità opposte di rivolgersi a Dio: l'una è una conferenza solitaria, la seconda è una vera preghiera! Scegliamo il secondo modo e potremo gustare la grazia di Dio che penetra nelle profondità della nostra vita.
