FAITH, HOPE, LOVE

The three theological virtues of faith, hope, and charity resonate in this Sunday's Liturgy of the Word. Speaking to his disciples, Jesus reminds us of the circularity that exists between love and the keeping of his Word. He who loves keeps his commandment; on the other hand, keeping the commandment reveals the truth of the love between the disciple and his Lord. Within this circularity, faith matures, which allows us to welcome the ever-deeper manifestation that God makes of himself to those who love him. Here too, there is a circularity that deepens the relationship: to those who love him, the Lord reveals himself more, and this progressive manifestation only increases love. This is the hope for which Saint Peter invites us to give an account to anyone who asks. It is the hope founded on the love of Him who died for us, to free us from sin and bring us back to God. Our faith, our love, our hope are enlivened by the gift of the Spirit, who in the Acts of the Apostles descends upon the inhabitants of Samaria, to remain with them always. As Jesus promises in the Gospel of John.

FEDE, SPERANZA, AMORE

Le tre virtù teologiche della fede, della speranza e della carità risuonano nella liturgia della Parola di questa domenica. Parlando ai discepoli Gesù ricorda la circolarità che sussiste tra l'amore e la custodia della sua Parola. Chi ama custodisce il suo comandamento, d'altra parte custodire il comandamento rivela la verità dell'amore tra il discepolo e il suo Signore. Dentro questa circolarità matura la fede, che consente di accogliere la manifestazione sempre più profonda che Dio fa di sé a coloro che lo amano. Anche qui c'è una circolarità che approfondisce la relazione: a coloro che lo amano il Signore si manifesta maggiormente e questa manifestazione progressiva non fa altro che accrescere l'amore. Questa è la speranza di cui san Pietro ci invita a rendere ragione a chiunque ce la chiede. È la speranza fondata sull'amore di chi è morto per noi, per liberarci dal peccato e ricondurci a Dio. La nostra fede, il nostro amore, la nostra speranza sono vivificati dal dono dello Spirito, che negli Atti discende sugli abitanti della Samaria, per rimanere sempre con loro. Come Gesù promette nel Vangelo di Giovanni.
