READINGS for SUNDAY, Sept. 13TH(24th SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME)

1st Reading - Sirach 27.30 - 28.7

2nd Reading - Romans 14.7 - 9

Gospel - Matthew 18.21 - 35

DON'T HATE...FORGET THE MISTAKES OF OTHERS!

To be honest, it's not pleasant to think that God uses the same measure we use: "With the measure you use, it will be measured to you in return" (cf. Mt 7:1-5). It's not pleasant because we think God must forgive everything and everyone; we can't do it, there are wrongs we can't digest, resentments we don't want to forget: God can do it... we can't! However, the Gospel cannot be annulled, and if we want to walk in the evangelical life, we can only confront ourselves with God's identity and work of salvation to transfer it into our existence, on that journey of faith that little by little makes us more and more in his image and likeness, that image revealed in Christ. The insistent questions of Sirach are a good examination of our conscience; The Gospel episode invites us to consider that we have an example of the real possibility of forgiveness, and it is the life of Jesus himself. Perhaps yes... if we are honest, it is difficult to forget evil, but it is not impossible to ensure that the evil done or suffered does not eternally condition our life: this is the true strength of love!

NON ODIARE...*DIMENTICA GLI ERRORI ALTRUI!

Ad essere sinceri, non è piacevole il pensiero che Dio utilizzi la stessa misura con la quale misuriamo noi: «Con la misura con cui misurate, sarà misurato a voi in cambio» (cfr. Mt 7,1-5). Non è piacevole perché pensiamo che Dio debba perdonare tutto e tutti; noi non ce la facciamo, ci sono torti che non riusciamo a digerire, risentimenti che non vogliamo dimenticare: Dio ci riesce... noi no! Tuttavia, il Vangelo non può essere annullato e, se vogliamo camminare nella vita evangelica, non possiamo che confrontarci con l'identità e l'opera di salvezza di Dio per trasferirla nella nostra esistenza, in quel cammino di fede che pian piano ci rende sempre più a immagine e somiglianza di lui, quell'immagine rivelata in Cristo. Le insistenti domande del Siracide sono un buon esame per la nostra coscienza; l'episodio evangelico ci invita a pensare che un esempio della reale possibilità di perdono noi l'abbiamo, ed è la vita stessa di Gesù. Forse sì... se siamo onesti è difficile dimenticare il male, ma non è impossibile fare in modo che il male fatto o subito non condizioni eternamente la nostra vita: questa è la vera forza di amare!
